

Please do not loosen restrictions placed on telemarketers in Wisconsin. There are other, less obtrusive means of marketing available to those complaining about the Wisconsin no-call list legislation. They can seek their relief elsewhere. The legislation could have been more protective of consumers--it could have required people to opt-in if they wanted calls. In my opinion, WI reached the proper balance for its citizens.